COMMENCES 5,000 METRE DRILLING PROGRAMME AT NORSEMAN

Kalgoorlie-Boulder Resources Limited (the "Company") today announced that it had commenced the next phase of drilling at its 100%-owned Norseman Gold Project in the prolific Norseman - Wyluna Greenstone belt of the Eastern Goldfields in Western Australia.

The 5,000 metre drilling programme will target extensions of the existing inferred resources already delineated at Mt Henry and Selene as well as three highly prospective areas within the Norseman project area at Break O Day, Telegraph and Everlasting.

The current drilling programme is part of the 2007 drilling programme that is aiming to upgrade and increase the significant JORC mineral resources at Norseman. This work forms an integral component of the Company's ongoing scoping study into the development of the project.

The latest drilling programme at Norseman will be structured as follows:

- 1,500 metres at Mt Henry – resource definition drilling;
- 1,500 metres at Selene – resource definition drilling;
- 650 metres at Telegraph – exploration;
- 650 metres at Break O Day – exploration; and
- 650 metres at Everlasting – exploration.

The Company recently completed an initial 1,578 metre RC drilling programme at its North Scotia, Selene and Mt Henry deposits at Norseman. The data acquired from this drilling programme is now being modelled as part of the Company's latest JORC resource calculations at the Mt Henry deposit and has allowed further drill hole planning for the Selene.

The Company expects to be in a position to report the results of its updated resource calculations shortly. The Company also expects to report the first drilling results from this latest drilling programme in early November.
